Michael Ordman Positively Israel

Michael Ordman

Michael Ordman worked as an Information Security Manager for a major international bank in London, England.

He and his wife Lynette spent most of their spare time writing letters of complaint to the media (mostly the BBC) to protest against deliberate anti-Israel reporting.

After the Ordmans made Aliya to Netanya in 2007, Michael decided to stop complaining and in 2010, established "Very Good News Israel", a blog devoted to rounding up summaries of 40 – 50 "good news" stories every week.

Visitors to the blogsite are mostly from the USA, France, the UK and Israel yet also from Arab and Muslim countries. Supporters translate articles into German, Portuguese and occasionally Hebrew, Spanish and Dutch.

Michael also maintains a searchable database "IsraelActive.com" of over 11,000
